

Kennedy, Macmillan Talk 'Valuable, Useful'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan had a "most valuable and useful" talk on world problems Wednesday but did not resolve differences about Red China.

The leaders of the two most powerful free world nations conferred for more than seven hours at the White House in the first day of a three-day series of consultations.

They concentrated on ways to strengthen the Western Alliance politically against the Communist threat, and also on bolstering the United Nations and improving aid programs for underdeveloped countries.

Experts See JFK's Budget $87 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Budget Bureau experts have prepared early-bird estimates which indicate that President Kennedy's first on-his-own budget, due next January, will total about $87 billion.

This was reported Wednesday by informed sources who said that even at a record $87 billion—about $6 billion above current levels—the budget should be balanced if the economy makes a satisfactory recovery from the current recession.

Kennedy will send Congress in January a budget covering the 1963 fiscal year beginning July 1, 1962.

Last week, Kennedy revised the 1961 and 1962 budgets submitted by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The revisions included estimates that federal spending will rise from $80.7 billion in the current fiscal year to $84.3 billion in the 12 months beginning July 1.

River Basin Companies Fear Rule Of Compact

HARRISBURG (AP)—Concern about the extent of powers proposed for the Delaware River Compact was expressed Wednesday by the Bethlehem Steel Co. and U.S. Steel Corp.

In a prepared statement, Bethlehem expressed fear that the compact would "create a new type of government; a government that would not contain the checks and balances inherent in our democratic system of government."

A statement from U.S. Steel contended that the proposed interstate compact would have "broader powers than are needed for appropriate development of the Delaware Basin."

Tshombe Simmered By Warning

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP)—President Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province backed off Wednesday from a belligerent anti-U.N. posture after a United Nations warning that new violence against its forces would bring swift action.

The capital of this rich Congo province remained tense in the wake of Tuesday's mob outbreak, but fears of a major clash between U.N. forces and Tshombe's supporters diminished.

Flare-ups of Irish U.N. soldiers poured into the Elisabethville airport, and the strong man president was told that any renewal of violence would bring Indian U.N. soldiers to the capital, a U.N. source reported. Tshombe strenuously opposes use of the Indians.

Met For 2 Hours

Tshombe met for two hours with the U.N. military chief in the Congo, Gen. Sean McKeown of Ireland, who issued the warning. A U.N. spokesman said the president agreed to rescind all the sanctions he had ordered against U.N. personnel in the heat of his address Tuesday to Elisabethville crowds.

That meant withdrawal of orders to his followers to carry out "general sabotage" against the United Nations, to refuse to trade with its personnel and to deprive U.N. establishments of water and electricity.

The U.N. source said Tshombe told McKeown the sanctions had been "suppressed but not lifted." The informant described this as a face-saving device by the president.

Finch, Paramour Get Life Terms

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Life imprisonment, with parole possible after seven years, was decreed by a jury Wednesday for Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carol Tregoff, convicted of murdering his socialite wife.

The once-wealthy surgeon and his once-beautiful mistress—taut and worn after three trials and three days of waiting to find if they would be sent to California's gas chamber—collapsed in sobs.

Wet With Tears

Finch, 44, a picture of stern composure much of the time, fell forward on the counsel table, his head cradled in his arms.

"He said not one word," his attorney told newsmen later. "The table was all wet from his tears."

Later, however, he told another attorney: "Thank God. Thank God."

Red-haired Carol, 23, sobbed audibly as she sat with her attorney's arm around her.

The state had demanded the death penalty for both, claiming they schemed for weeks to slay Barbara Jean Finch, 36, hired a hoodlum to kill her, and, when he failed, calmly did it themselves, with a bullet in the back, July 19, 1959. Their motive? Hate, greed and jealousy, said the state.

The jury of 10 men and two women, which convicted the pair March 27 after two previous juries deadlocked, had been weighing their life or death decision since last Monday.

Superior Court Judge David Coleman complimented the jurors and set formal sentencing for April 17. The jury's recommendation of life imprisonment must be followed.

When the proceedings ended, as the 92 spectators crumpled into the Hall of Justice courtroom sat spellbound, Dr. Finch pulled himself erect, leaned over and spoke to Carol two seats away. The words were inaudible.

He spoke briefly to attorneys, and stalked out. Miss Tregoff, red of eye and cheek, wobbled slightly as she made her exit.

The jury convicted Finch of two capital crimes—first-degree murder and conspiracy to murder. The penalty for both is death or life imprisonment. Miss Tregoff also was convicted of conspiracy, and of the lesser crime of second-degree murder. The penalty for the latter is seven years to life.

Because of the length of deliberations, it was feared the jury might be deadlocked. But after coming into court Wednesday afternoon to ask one question, the verdict speedily was reached.

The question: Could either defendant be sentenced to life imprisonment with no possibility of parole?

The answer was no.

There is no possibility of Finch receiving consecutive life sentences—one on each count—and becoming ineligible for parole.

Under California law Finch will serve his two life sentences concurrently and the seven-year parole eligibility period will not be affected.

The setting of the murder was the well-to-do suburb of West Covina.

Admitted Romances

Handsome, tennis-loving Dr. Finch grossed $300,000 a year from a clinic and investments. His wife was a social leader. But their marriage had gone sour. He married a series of illicit romances with women at the clinic. Miss Tregoff, his receptionist, was the latest.

The state's case: After the hoodlum failed to kill Mrs. Finch, the defendants decided to do it themselves. They went from a love nest in Las Vegas, Nev., to pull an ambush in the dark of night. When Mrs. Finch returned from a social engagement, the doctor struck her, then shot her in the back as she fled. Miss Tregoff participated by bringing to the scene a "murder kit" containing potentially lethal items designed to make the slaying look accidental.

Dr. Finch admitted the shooting, but said it happened during a struggle for a gun his wife pulled on him when the defendants called to discuss her divorce plans.

When arrested, Dr. Finch was tanned and hard of muscle. He is grayer now, his face more drawn, but a handsome man.

Miss Tregoff, red-haired ex-model, was sleek and tawny. More than a year in jail, plus a thyroid condition, have padded her curves, puffed her face, taken the glow from her complexion.

Throughout the three trials the couples exchanged words of enmity and sympathy when opportunity presented. Though the prosecution scoffed, saying she was but a passing romance, the doctor said repeatedly he loved Carol dearly and would marry if he could.

Belgium Asked To Withdraw Again In Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Fifteen countries proposed Wednesday that the General Assembly threaten Belgium with necessary U.N. action if she did not withdraw all Belgian military men and political advisers from the Congo within 21 days.

Yugoslavia and 14 nations of Africa and Asia submitted a resolution to that effect even though Belgium had just agreed to carry out a Feb. 21 resolution of the Security Council that urged the immediate withdrawal of all such personnel.

In Brussels, sources for the government said only 32 Belgian troops under the direct authority of the Defense Ministry remained in the Congo and would be withdrawn soon.

Another Decision

The new proposal would have the 99-nation assembly decide that if Belgium did not meet with the deadline unspecified "necessary action should be taken in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations."

The charter authorizes the council to call for economic boycott, diplomatic quarantine and even force to "give effect to its decisions." It empowers the council and assembly together to suspend or expel a recalcitrant U.N. member.

The council's February resolution, its fourth on the Congo, urged the immediate evacuation of all mercenaries and "all Belgian and other foreign military and paramilitary personnel and political advisers not under the United Nations command" in that African republic.

In a note dated Monday and published Wednesday, Belgian Delegate Walter Loricin told Hammarskjold his government had "decided to implement the resolution in question and to withdraw, insofar as Belgium is concerned, the personnel referred to therein."

But he added that the withdrawal of the other personnel—apparently meaning political advisers—can be carried out only with due respect for Congolese sovereignty, since under the Congolese constitution such individuals owed allegiance to the Congolese authorities.

Soviet Backs Down, U.S. Firm In U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union Wednesday withdrew its U.N. complaint against the United States stemming from last year's U2 and RB47 plane incidents.

But the action, taken with the avowed intention of easing international tension, failed to win United States agreement to dropping Hungary and Tibet from the list of issues still listed for debate by the General Assembly.

Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin told the U.N. Political Committee that because of improved conditions since President Kennedy took office the Soviet Union would not insist upon retaining the complaint on the assembly's agenda.

Making Effort

"In declaring this," Zorin said, "the Soviet delegation deems it necessary to stress that the Soviet government has been making constant efforts toward the easing of international tension and the improvement of Soviet-American relations, and also seeking to do all it can for the work of the General Assembly to be carried out under favorable conditions."

He said the assembly still had before it the "groundless" questions of Hungary and Tibet.

Statements favoring the compact also were entered by the Neshaminy Valley Watershed Association of Bucks County; Edward Hopkins Jr., president of the Water Research Foundation, and J. Eric Jones, deputy secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce.

GOP Charges Politics In State Racing Program

HARRISBURG (AP)—Republicans claimed Wednesday Pennsylvania's harness racing program was being hampered by politics before it even gets out of the starting gate.

The legislature rocked with reaction to a split that developed between two Democrats and a Republican on the three-man harness racing commission earlier in the day.

"Politics controls harness racing in Pennsylvania," Rep. Maurice Goldstein, R-Allegheny, told the House.

He called for immediate action on legislation that would prohibit politicians from having financial interest in part-mutuel harness tracks or in concessions at the tracks.

Sen. Robert Fleming, R-Allegheny, introduced a bill in the Senate calling for repeal of the 1959 Harness Racing Act.

The reaction concerned the commission's decision to issue a license to a group headed by Philadelphia millionaire James P. Clark, finance chairman of the city's Democratic Committee.

These remarks sparked heated replies from several Democrats, including House Majority Leader Stephen McConn, D-Greene. He said he resented what he said was the implication that politicians couldn't be trusted.

Rep. Thomas J. McCormack, a Philadelphia Democrat, came to Clark's defense. He said any track operated by Clark "will be maintained at a very high level."

Radar—The House Motor Vehicle Committee postponed action on a Senate-passed bill to legalize radar. Chairman William Linper, D-Philadelphia, explained that his committee wants to see a demonstration next Monday before it acts on the proposal.

Fair Educational Opportunities—Ignoring Republican objections, House Democrats forced a vote on a bill proposing to ban discrimination in any institution of higher education, except those operated by religious groups. The measure fell three votes short of passage, 103-84.

Republicans withheld votes for the measure when Democrats refused a request of GOP assistant floor leader, Edwin W. Tompkins, to delay the final vote until next week to give him time to study his amendments which would limit the proposal to state-aided institutions.

The amendments later were defeated but Republicans seemed more concerned over alleged parliamentary discourtesy. The proposal is expected to be considered next week.

Highway Safety—Senate Democrats were caught off guard when one of their own members, Sen. William V. Mullin, Philadelphia, introduced amendments that would kill the effectiveness of the proposed junior license bill.

Problems Of Juvenile Delinquency

A CLASS in Problems of Juvenile Delinquency of the Basic Correction School, which has been meeting weekly for the past 25 weeks, held a dinner meeting Tuesday night to award certificates to those completing the course. The meeting was held at the home of Peter Margretta, 2100 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg.

During the last meeting, the class summarized their study of the needs in Monroe County to aid in the correction of juvenile delinquency and make these five recommendations:

That the community needs a detention home for juveniles where they may be held pending a hearing and disposition of their cases.

That all playgrounds in the county be put to maximum use, under supervision.

That in cases where young people are in any kind of trouble known to any of the professional agency, a welfare conference be called so that all agencies involved with the case may share in the planning for help.

That the services of the Lehigh Valley Social Service Exchange be used as a clearing house in order to determine what agencies must be represented in this conference;

Youth Center
That an attempt be made to establish a youth center, to operate at cost, as a non-profit agency;

That this be publicly run and financed and properly supervised, and that it be a place where young people of the county may drop in after school or in early night hours several days a week;

That parents be asked to help in its operation as well as members of this class;

That the attempt of a local committee to establish public parks be supported.

Use For Taxes

A fellow named William Wallace says he got two bogus quarters when he cashed his relief check the other day in Chicago, or maybe in change at a bar, and was arrested when he tried to stuff them into the coin slot of a juke box.

The government couldn't disprove Wallace's story, but tried him for counterfeiting. Wallace was found guilty and sentenced to spend an hour in the custody of the U. S. marshal.

All this cost the taxpayers from $750 to $2,000, depending on what you add in. In any case, it took at least a year's taxes sweated out of a couple of average taxpayers.

Everyone is supposed to be happy. Wallace is free after minor inconvenience, the D. A. has another notch in his brief case, witnesses, jurors and the like have been paid.

And who knows which two taxpayers sacrifice all year for this? We used to think what our money was needed for was to buy transistors for guided missiles to keep ahead of the Russians and all that jazz.

Agencies Should Account For Funds

There are warning signs that the public should read in trying to determine the worth of a charitable cause.

For not all fund-raising agencies are as "lily white" as they would have the public believe.

Each year people give literally millions of dollars to charitable causes of various types. In New York State alone there are 3,184 fund-raising organizations, some local, some state-wide.

And the public should know what signs to look for in determining whether these agencies are using the funds collected wisely or as represented. Here are some points to check:

One—Any organization that spends more than 12 per cent of its total income for fund-raising purposes is open to question. There are legitimate reasons, in some instances, for greater spending in fund-raising, but as a rule all agencies will spend under 12 per cent of their income for this purpose.

Two—Agencies that spend more than 50 per cent of their funds for year 'round office expense are open to question. By checking the stated purpose of the organization, the person donating can usually determine whether the heavy office expense is legitimate. For in some cases, the money raised may be intended only for office expense, and the organization says so. Be wary of organizations that emphasize money given to research when a check of the records will show actually a very small portion of the funds raised go for this purpose.

Three—People who give should not hesitate to ask any fund-raising agency to show what kind of a balance it has in its budget from the previous year. The State Charities Registration Bureau of the State Department of Social Welfare has found that budget surpluses range from zero to as high as 89 per cent of the total funds raised. Again a large balance can be legitimate, but it should cause the donor to ask for more information.

It does seem that any agency that asks for public support should willingly publish a budget breakdown to show how the money is to be spent. This should include a breakdown on salaries, office expense, rental, equipment, educational programs, research, or any other phase of the agency work.

And the following year, before the agency begins its fund-raising, it should give a detailed budget accounting to the public on how it spent its money the past year, and what percentage of surplus remains, if any.

We think agencies that ask public support would want to take the public into their confidence and give the public an accounting of their stewardship. —Pittsburgh, N.Y., Press-Republic

George Sokolsky Says . . .

No More Koreans

The great cost to the United States in the Korean debacle was not that we lost a war but that every nation had to reassess its relationship to the United States and an increasing number became neutral. Everybody like a winner.

If we lose in Laos or, for that matter, if we suffer any further loss anywhere, our international situation will degenerate with finality. A nation cannot assert leadership and not lead; it cannot assume superiority without military superiority. And if there is military superiority, it must be proved by military might which is war.

These are axioms and a nation that tries other methods only too soon discovers that some other country has taken its place.

Let us note the position of President de Gaulle of France. Laos was a part of French Indo-China. French Indo-China was a most important political and economic sector of France, the city of Saigon being for France what Hongkong was for Great Britain.

The Annamites and other peoples of French Indo-China rebelled, supported by the Chinese Communists and won a great victory over France which resulted in France being eliminated from Southeast Asia.

Had France been supported by its allies, the United States and Great Britain, it might not have lost French Indo-China. The United States was tied down to a doctrine of anti-colonialism which has fragmented Asia and is now fragmenting Africa.

French Indo-China was broken into North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia and because of this, Thailand (which used to be called Siam) is in peril of falling to the might of Red China.

The population of Red China is variously estimated up to 600,000,000 persons. No census has ever been taken. When I lived there, we used to speak of the population of 450,000,000. Whether it has increased so much in 30 years, nobody can truthfully say because no one has counted the people.

However, whatever the figure may be it is too large for the food supply which is traditionally inadequate.

During the past two years, at least, Red China has suffered several famines, which is not too unusual, particularly for the southern part of that country where the density of population is perhaps the greatest and worst in the world. Density of population is best solved by the population moving where food is more plentiful.

This is a rice eating people and China has, for centuries, imported rice from French Indo-China and from Siam (Thailand). What is happening in Laos is that a Chinese population is pouring into that country. The report that Chinese are about to move into Laos is piffle; they have already moved.

These Chinese are part of Communist China to which we all would like to see 200,000,000 people and benefit thereby. It is cheaper to send people to war or as volunteers in revolutions, to live off some other country, than to attempt to feed them.

Red China sought to solve many of its economic problems by orthodox Marxism, by establishing communes, and failed. The communes did not produce an increase of food. As a matter of fact, famine pursued the communes. Red China is pouring population into all the countries of East Asia.

Indonesia has set up resistance to the increase of Red China in that country, but Laos is not geographically or militarily situated suitably for resistance to Red China. In the South of China lie four heavily populated provinces, Kuantung, Kuangsai, Kwetchow and Yunnan.

Kuantung, which is often referred to as Canton because of the name of the city, has produced most of the Chinese who live outside of China. In Kuangsai live many races of aborigines who have never engaged in any other business than war since the authority of Peking weakened over them during the Taping Rebellion (1850-1865).

Yunnan lies in mountainous country close to Burma and French Indo-China and has been under the influence of the former French city of Saigon for more than a century.

It is out of these four provinces that a Communist Chinese population heavily armed is pouring into Laos. Every day that is lost in stopping them from marching southward gives them more territory. Perhaps when the time comes for a 14 Nation Conference, Laos will be populated by Chinese Reds and the world will encounter another Soviet fait accompli.

This has always been Soviet tactics—talk soft and fight continuously. While all this is going on, the Warsaw Conference has sought to divert attention to Germany. This too is a Soviet tactic: Hit two spots at one time and let the West take its choice as to when it will accept defeat.

The Pennsylvania Story

Education Report

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Few efforts on the "study" front in Pennsylvania have produced the interest and consternation, the approbation and disapproval, the acceptance and outright hostility — as that generated this week in the formal presentation of the report of the Governor's Special Committee on Education.

The one-inch-thick tome compiled by the committee in what it terms its "Final Report" is in reality somewhat of a masterpiece considering the basic fact that it had just about one year from the time of its inception to this presentation of its final report.

In the weeks and months to come the report of course will be plucked apart not unlike a hen being prepared for the dinner table — but the salient fact stands out like a little red school house in the midst of today's contemporary educational edifices, that the report is about as comprehensive and information-packed as anything that might be produced without getting into the encyclopedia class.

It is perhaps a tragic afterthought that the parents of today's school children, and those to come tomorrow, cannot have the full text of the report before them for study rather than the excerpts and partialisms that necessarily will result.

Fundamentally the report does not fiddle, Committee findings and recommendations run the gamut from the post-disaster kindergarten stage through high school — and briefly into the educational world beyond, the college level.

To illustrate how the report runs: Virtually all forms of discussion prior to the issuance of the study report centered around the "financial side" of the educational picture in Pennsylvania — "how much" it would cost and how it would be paid.

Curiously, interestingly and significantly — the report seemingly brushes over this point comparatively lightly, devoting only a few pages to the subject.

The point, the committee seemed more concerned with "how" and "what" is needed to beef up Pennsylvania's oft-mentioned heavily lagging educational program, than devotion of reams of paper and untold man-hours trying to solve the financial phase.

Admittedly this must be done — but that necessarily is a legislative matter, foremost and last.

The committee merely offered as possibilities for consideration: (1) the sidetracked proposals of the 1959 Tax Advisory Committee; (2) several types of state tax on personal incomes; (4) conversion of the present sales tax to a general coverage tax.

In other fields of education the committee report was much more exhaustive, comprehensive and detailed — in effect pulling few punches.

For example, in the field of curricula the committee didn't hedge-podge the subject in a general fashion by saying more emphasis should be given to science, math, language, etc., — but spelled out specifically a "minimum adequate curriculum" for each grade, by subject and down to minutes per week. In another field, and again to illustrate how the committee pulled no punches — look at these two recommendations: (1) all school districts should have 5,000 pupils except seventh and eighth class counties which should be single school districts; (2) after reorganization is complete, there should be no office of county superintendent.

This column today is not designed of course to even remotely provide a digest of the committee report. The point seemingly to be made though is that the report itself is comprehensive enough to warrant the consideration of every parent in Pennsylvania who can get his or her hands on a copy!

If nothing else, it has laid a blueprint that will be discussed pro and con — unquestionably with some heat — in legislative halls and local school board meeting rooms!

The Allen-Scott Report

Moving Against GE

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Attorney General Robert Kennedy is tackling the nation's largest industrial corporation in the first of his big anti-trust suits.

The government's chief legal officer, following in the trust-busting footsteps of his Republican predecessor, is filing this month the first of two anti-monopoly cases against the huge General Motors Corporation.

As proposed by Robert Bicks, former head of the Anti-Trust division under the Eisenhower Administration, General Motors will be sued under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act for allegedly monopolizing the market for diesel locomotives and their parts.

The second or "the big" General Motors suit, as it is referred to in the Justice Department, is now in its final stage of preparation and is scheduled for filing later this year.

Under this spectacular prosecution, General Motors will be asked to divest itself of all but one of its five passenger car divisions.

In both instances, Kennedy is giving the green light for his trust-busters to go ahead after a careful two months' review of the cases that former Attorney General William Rogers expressly left behind for his Democratic successor's determination.

Before making his decisions, aides report that young Kennedy carefully considered the explosive political as well as legal and economic implications involved in the suits.

Foremost among these is that Robert McNamara, new Defense Secretary, is the former president of Ford Motor Company — leading GM competitor. On account of this relationship, Kennedy is avoiding discussing the cases with McNamara or any member of the Cabinet. He also is strictly forbidding any of his top aides to talk with outsiders about these or any other cases in the Justice Department.

In one of the documents submitted to the Justice Department by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), (3) numerous detailed complaints from GM competitors; and (4) the Anti-Trust division's won three-year-old investigation.

In connection with diesel switchers. In 1960, the peak year in its history, there were 4,175 switchers ordered in this country and General Motors' share was 48 per cent of switchers and 57 per cent of road locomotives. By 1964, total orders had been reduced to 883, but General Motors' portion of the business had risen to 80 per cent and 70 per cent respectively.

As reported in an earlier column, among the documents submitted to the grand jury is a special report prepared by Senator Kefauver, stating as follows:

"General Motors and its wholly owned subsidiary, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, are respectively the largest manufacturing and sales finance companies in the world. In its manufacturing operations GM operates 119 plants in 64 cities in the U.S., as well as plants in 18 foreign countries. It employs more than one-half million persons in its worldwide activities."

"It is the leading producer of passenger cars, trucks, automotive parts, buses and locomotives in the world, and an important producer of off-the-highway earth-moving machinery."

"A firm whose gross sales total $12-billion, whose assets exceed $5.5 billion and whose profits after taxes exceed $1 billion cannot help but have considerable effect upon our economy. In whatever industry it operates, regardless of market propositions, General Motors presents the problem of size."

"In the passenger car industry, General Motors poses especially difficult problems, not only because of its relative market position, but also because of its absolute size. In recent years, GM has sold more motor vehicles in the U.S. than all other producers combined."

Note: General Motors, the largest manufacturing organization in the world, has five passenger car divisions in the U.S. and three abroad. It is also one of the topmost defense contractors in the U.S.

After the recess — Democratic congressional leaders are ready to put aside their reluctance to raise postal rates. Working with President Kennedy, they are preparing a bill that would provide across-the-board increases for first, second, and third class mail. Without higher rates, the President told them that the government would spend $831 million more to carry the mails than it would get in revenues in fiscal 1962.

Federal Reserve officials face a meeting in Congress after the Easter recess. Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.), chairman, will start off with hearings before the Joint Economic Committee. He plans to rehash the Federal Reserve's actions in 1960.

Federal help for commuters becomes a near certainty this year, probably in the form of tax or direct loan assistance. An Administration study of urban transportation woes, spurred on by rising talk of commuter railroad bankruptcy, will produce suggestions for modest government aid that Congress will support, according to key legislators on the House and Senate Interstate Commerce Committees.

Students Urged To Up Goals

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Students should not be satisfied with average grades but should strive for superior performance, U. S. Chief Justice Earl Warren said Wednesday.

"The mantle of leadership has fallen upon the shoulders of the young men and women of America," Warren told the spring convocation at the University of Pittsburgh.

"Even with the high standards of the modern university students should strive for high excellence," Warren said, "for the oncoming generation will have greater opportunities than their elders had."

He added: "Under our system the values which guide us and which we offer to others are formed, are hammered out through learning in institutions where the mind is free to explore, to agree or disagree, to criticize or applaud, and to apply truths as they may be conceived."

Warren spoke before some 550 students and 1,000 guests. After the speech Pitt Chancellor Edward H. Litchfield conferred on Warren an honorary degree of doctor of civil law.

Corvair 700 Lakeside Station Wagon

Monza Club Coupe

One of these Chevy Corvairs wants

YOU

(in a friendly way, of course)

Either of these Corvairs would make you a wonderful traveling companion. (Any of Corvair's ten budget-priced models would, for that matter.) The Lakeside Station Wagon earns its keep with a solid 68 cubic feet of cargo space, 10 of it under that lockable hood. And the Monza Club Coupe, with its bucket-type front seats, lets you in on some ultra-comfortable driving.

And they both handle and brake and perform beautifully. (Proof of the pudding is the way the '61 Corvair manhandled the recent Canadian Winter Rally, winning outright and taking the first five places in its class in this rugged 1,265-mile test.) Look 'em over at your dealer's. And if you can't decide which one you want, feel free to take both.

Find Graveyard Of Prehistorics

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP)—A graveyard of prehistoric beasts has been uncovered by American and French oilmen drilling in the barren, lifeless desert of southwest Cyrenaica.
 The ground around the well is thick with fossilized bones of mastodons—huge extinct elephants and various other creatures which roamed the earth millions of years ago.
 Until the oil companies moved in three years ago, the desert was unexplored. No animals now live there and no birds ever fly overhead. But scientists say millions of years ago it may have been a swamp, and the hunting ground of prehistoric beasts.

FIELD BORDER STRIPS — State conservation practices such as field border strips play an important role in providing better food and cover habitat for our wildlife. Field borders are ideal nesting areas for quail and pheasants and they provide cover for other small game from predatory animals. Assistance in planning field borders is available from technicians of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service assisting the Monroe County Soil Conservation District.

What Young People Think

Busy Youngsters Have No Time For Three-Minute Breakfast Eggs

By Eugene Gilbert
President, Gilbert Youth
Research Co.

"LIFE," said Nathaniel Hawthorne a century ago, "has few pleasanter prospects than a well provisioned breakfast table."

Novelist Hawthorne would be surprised to learn that today nearly a fourth of America's young people don't even eat breakfast. And of the 74 per cent who do, only a scant 7 per cent sit down to what could be called a well provisioned board.

We discovered this after asking 973 teenagers about their eating habits in a cross-section survey conducted in 14 cities across the nation.

"Breakfast usually is crammed into about three minutes every morning," said Ann Hege, 15, of State College, Pa.

Hege was a typical comment, expressed another way by 16-year-old Judy Wilkes of Seattle, Wash. Judy eats breakfast every morning, she said, "unless I'm late for school."

Time, or the lack of it, appears to be the deciding factor, because 67 per cent of the teen-agers (56 per cent of the boys and 78 per cent of the girls) say they have a bigger breakfast on week-ends and holidays.

As Susan Kaiser, 16, of Newark, N.J., commented, "I have more time and have no worries of school."

They Eat And Eat
But this isn't always the case. Mary J. Hall, 18, of Louisville, Ky., for example, spoke for the 38 per cent (44 per cent boys and 31 per cent girls) who eat a medium sized breakfast every day — holidays included.

"In the morning," said Mary, "all I want is something to keep my stomach from growling." The great majority (72 per cent) make up for a small or medium breakfast with between-meal snacks, and 33 per cent of the boys and 19 per cent of the girls said they had a hot lunch. The rest eat sandwiches for lunch.

And there are the real trenchermen, like 16-year-old Roy Duncan, of Seattle, who eats a breakfast of bacon and eggs, hotcakes, coffee and toast, and for lunch puts away three sandwiches, a bowl of soup, a banana and a slice of cake.

Roy is among the 25 per cent of the boys and 15 per cent of the girls who don't eat between meals.

"Three meals a day is enough for anyone," declared Emily Simmons, 17, of Eugene, Ore. But Emily and Roy are in the minority.

Few Weight Problems

Judy Burk, 16, of Waterloo, Iowa, likes to have a sack of popcorn handy because "it fills you up fast." Carla Fagan, 15, of Brooklyn, N.Y., confesses she has a yen for candy; Eileen Bernstein, 15, of New York, calls herself "a tuna fish addict;" and underscoring Rocky Kershaw, 15, of State College, says he'll eat "anything that happens to be in the cupboard."

If their eating habits appear unusual to adults, the teen-agers can point out the fact that 69 per cent of them (75 per cent boys and 62 per cent girls) don't feel they have a weight problem.

Girls, perhaps, are more conscious of these matters. Twenty-six per cent of them felt they were over weight (or, like 16-year-old Debby Rubin, 16, of New York, "overweight in places"), and 33 per cent of them said, they had been on a diet at one time or another.

Only 15 per cent of the boys had found it necessary to diet, and they seemed to be more successful at it than the girls.

Just 2 per cent of the boys, compared with 12 per cent of the girls, said they had not maintained the weight they established after dieting.

But the girls were the ones with advice for others contemplating a diet.

"When you want to eat," said 15-year-old Marlene Gottlieb of New York, "keep thinking of being thinner."

Marilyn Files, 15, of State College, advises "don't bother dieting unless it's necessary."

For those of even less will power, 17-year-old Sheria Brown of Eugene, Ore., was the spokesman:

"Don't try it."

Grapes Seen Making Ideal Home Fruit

By George Abraham
 GRAPES AGAIN—Grapes make an ideal home fruit because they are not only ornamental, but are highly nutritious. There's one job owners do not like, and that is pruning. Pruning must be done every year if you want good grapes. It's absolutely necessary, and it's almost impossible to injure vines by pruning, regardless of how badly you do it.

If no pruning is done, grapes may be injured permanently. So, if you still have a few tips which might help you. First, learn to differentiate between canes that developed last year and the older ones.

This is important, for the buds which will produce fruit this year are found only on last year's canes. You can tell such canes. They are lighter in color.

"Bull Canes"
 So the canes you want to save are those of last year's growth, about 5 to 8 ft. long and as thick as a lead pencil, or thicker and fairly short - jointed.

"The long, jointed canes are called 'bull' canes, and they are not too fruitful. Save 3 or 4 canes, and remove all unneeded old wood, and weaker canes of last year's growth. Don't worry if your canes bleed.

Now that you've got your pruning done, you'll want to tie the canes to a wire trellis. This secures the vines, positions the fruit and foliage so that insect and disease control will be easier, and facilitates picking. It also promotes shoot growth for next year's fruiting canes.

Bending the cane over a wire is done to purposely injure it by stretching the cane's plumbing system. This temporarily stops the movement of plant sap. A cane should be bent until you hear, see or feel the plant tissue crack.

Good Annual
 Many gardeners are not familiar with the cockscomb, (Celosia) of which there are two kinds: The crested (ball - shaped heads) and the plumed, or feathered types. Toreador is a large ball - shaped crested cockscomb, ideal against a green or white background, growing about 20 inches high.

Forest Fire is a showy plumed cockscomb, with large heavy upright orange - scarlet plumes, with dark, bronzy red foliage. This item is ideal against a background of white cleome, or it can be faced with white petunias. Incidentally, did you know that the various cockscombs are ideal in dried arrangements? After you cut them, hang the stems upside down in an airy spot until dry.

Start seed indoors, or if you live in an area with a long growing season you can start them outdoors in shirt-sleeve weather. Most Celosias do well in soils not too rich.

Question Box

Question of the week — F.R. of Stroudsburg: "I need a shade tree for the front of our home, but don't know how or when to plant one. Are maples growing in the woods suitable?"

Spring's a fine time to transplant shade trees. The secret is to get them started before hot summer comes. Some trees such as the magnolia, with thick fleshy roots, do better if spring planted, and the earlier the better. Others best moved in spring include Flowering dogwood, Hornbeam, and Yellowwood.

In planting, make the hole large enough so roots are not doubled or twisted. Trees up to 2 1/2 to 3 inches in trunk diameter (1 foot above ground) are usually moved bare-root, that is without soil attached. Over this size, difficult-to-transport types, should be moved with a ball of soil.

Home-owners usually buy their trees from the nursery, and they are bare-root. Always protect the roots from drying out. Moist burlap protects them until you get time to plant them.

It's more difficult to transplant a tree from the woods or field, because the roots haven't been restricted, and in the transplanting process you often lose many roots. However, if you're careful you can transplant desirable species to your property. Trim off frayed roots, and cut the top back one-third before planting. Make cuts close to trunk, leaving no stubs!

C.F. of Canadensis: "Last year our peppers didn't amount to much. Is it because we didn't plant them close enough together?"

No. This has nothing to do with the size of the crop. Peppers are sensitive to hot weather. When the weather is "normal" at blooming time, you get a good set of fruit. But, if it's hot and windy at blooming time, the buds or blossoms will drop off.

Thus, it's the weather at blooming time which determines whether or not you'll get fruit. In Arizona, often one or two drying days in the middle of the blooming period will ruin an entire crop of peppers.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The Junior Woman's Club wouldn't really need to have a program for their Mother-Senior Night. It's enough for their guests to have a chance to see the latest in hair-do's (there's not a flat-top in the crowd), and in Spring styles (the easy, relaxed look), and in calculating how crowded our schools are going to be five years from now.

Actually, they had a very good program. I always enjoy Sterling Strauser — although for his sins, I could wish he'd have to report one of his talks some night. It's more of a conversation and easy to listen to but impossible to reduce to neat paragraphs.

Neat paragraphs seem harder and harder to come by these days, anyway, with everybody so full of plans and anticipations. In the midst of talking about the Stroud Club rummage sale, Rosalie Deus let it slip that she and her son are going to join Manuel Deus in Europe for three months this summer.

He's already in France on a business and they'll be joining him in June, with their headquarters just across the border from Geneva, which must make it very hard for her to keep her mind on rummage.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Richard Turner are excited about their son, Dr. David, who has accepted a post as the only public health doctor in an island in the Bering Sea above the Aleutians, which sounds very different.

And Gretchen Wyckoff having been accepted in an exchange program of the Rotary Club to spend next year in Holland.

It is a big, wide wonderful world, and although I have no plans for leaving my little corner of it, I start getting excited for everybody else.

Art Is Fun, Strauser Demonstrates At Meeting

Setting out to prove that "art is not an intellectual process but fun," Sterling Strauser, local artist, proved to members of the Junior Woman's Club and their guests, their mothers and members of the Senior Woman's Club, that he can achieve with words the same lightness and humor he achieves with paint.

The meeting was held at the YMCA on Tuesday night, and his talk came as a running accompaniment to his demonstration during which he painted a floral still-life in half an hour and a portrait in 15 minutes.

Using what he likes to call the "Strauser method," but which he admitted others have called "the smear campaign," he painted on the floor using big brushes, burnt stick, painting knives and pieces of plywood for palettes to achieve his effect.

In the course of his conversation, he let fall such gems as: "An artist paints as he does because he paints when he does. A hobby painter with a daily job has to paint quickly because he never knows when he can get back to it."

"My wife used to let me paint in her kitchen; now I let her cook in my studio."

"A poor artist has small patience and a big brush; a great artist, great patience and a small brush."

"Modern art must be experienced first hand. You can't read about it in an art appreciation book. There are no words to describe abstract art."

He defended modern art as a medium offering satisfaction to the untalented or self-taught artist who might be scared off by a more conventional approach.

The main necessity for painting was a critical eye and an ability to evaluate what one sees, he said.

Using Mrs. Ronald Saxon as a model, he painted a portrait study.

Mrs. Lawrence Levy presided at the business meeting when announcement was made of the County Federation Spring meeting to be held April 20 at the Inn at Buck Hill Falls. Reservations are to be made with her by April 12.

Two successful projects were reported. Mrs. Russell Irwin reported on the rummage and bake sale and Mrs. Randall Morris on the All-Star Stage Show for children.

Preliminary reports for the annual business meeting in May were also given. Mrs. Richard Krueger gave the report of the nominating committee: Mrs. Richard Primrose, president; Mrs. Stanley Grace, first vice president; Mrs. Richard Krueger, second vice president; Mrs. Jack Luckey, recording secretary; Mrs. Stanley Wilush, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Gary Keller, treasurer.

Mrs. Wilush reported on welfare projects suggested for the coming year and Mrs. Grace on suggestions for raising funds for them.

All of these will be voted on at the May meeting.

Punch and cupcakes were served after the meeting.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"The friendly store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Today was a wonderful day! First thing to happen was the arrival of the mail with a note from my very good friend, Diana Peckham Cohen, with whom I haven't had nearly enough contact since she and Lester moved into New York. Diana is a fine, warm-hearted woman who has established a business known as Research Unlimited Associates, which does all kinds of research for writers, publishers, motion pictures, radio, TV, advertising agencies, etc. She is a natural for this, with her own background as a writer and her natural ability to meet people.

Later, in a telephone conversation, Diana told me everything is going wonderfully for Lester and herself — she has her own exciting work, and he has just signed a contract to write a book. It concerns an outstanding personality on our American scene, and the fascinating representatives of the intelligentsia who were his associates. Other than that I'll say nothing, for fear I might be betraying a secret.

"I was just in New York," I told her. "I interviewed Joe Bishop, Max Asnas, Mala Rubinstein . . ."

"Wonderful!" Diana chortled. "You're certainly getting all the big ones, aren't you?"

And so is she. A friend of hers just made it big with "The Frog Pond," a best seller in which psychiatrists are taken over the coals. Diana tells me a copy is in the mail for me, and I'll be watching! Funny thing is, a few of us were discussing the book in our Wyckoff Lounge the other day, and I made up my mind then to read it. It sounds sensational.

Wonderful news for Wyckoff customers of the "women in white" professions is the invitation to attend a White Swan Trunk Showing this Friday, April 7th, from nine to nine in our uniform department on the Main Floor. Jerry Kagan, fashion consultant for White Swan Uniforms, will show over 100 new Spring and Summer styles, fashioned from practical, pretty, wash and wear fabrics, and expertly tailored in junior, misses, tall girl and half sizes. During the day, two White Swan uniforms will be given away. So, be sure to attend.

In all fashionable stores, I have been intrigued by the cosmetic counter devoted to the powders and creams of Charles of the Ritz. In Woodward and Lothrop, Washington, D.C., and countless other stores in big cities, I have watched with interest as stunningly attired women have waited patiently to have powders custom-mixed to match their own skin tone. Now . . . on Monday, April 10 . . . Charles of the Ritz is coming to Wyckoff's, as a permanent part of our fine cosmetic line.

Charles of the Ritz was founded about 1927 by Mr. Charles Jundt who opened a beauty salon in the old Ritz-Carlton Hotel on Madison Avenue. There he developed a much-needed treatment line for those who sought his advice on skin problems. So excellent were the preparations, they are now sold in most of the fine department and specialty stores across the nation.

The Charles of the Ritz policy is one of making the finest treatment items available at the fairest possible price. They are manufactured in South Norwalk, Connecticut, of the finest ingredients, according to specifications of the U.S. Government, and under the most rigid inspection. Plan to visit Wyckoff's Monday, April 10th, and meet Miss Evelyn Zito, for advice and assistance in selecting YOUR personalized Charles of the Ritz cosmetics.

Some People Have No Pride

Dear Abby: First, let me explain our circumstances. We are not rich, but we work steady and save our money. We have some relatives (on my husband's side) who spend money faster than they make it. They owe everybody in town. They live out of the state, thank goodness. A few months ago they asked us for a "loan." We told them no. We have had our lesson with lending them money. It took them nine years to pay back $300. Ever since that time we have been getting boxes filled with their old worn-out clothes and shoes. They are nothing but rags and junk. Little notes are enclosed. "Maybe you can use these." I think this is going too far. How would you handle this?

INSULTED

Dear Insulted: Express your feelings to your relatives. Then express the boxes back to them.

(collect) if they send any more. Dear Abby: About two months ago our daughter, told us she was going to marry the young man she had been going with. She said they intend to marry "some time this fall" in our church.

The young man has been a visitor in our home many times, but he has never spoken to either me or my wife about marrying our daughter. Had the young man asked, we would have given our approval, but we feel he should have asked anyway.

Our daughter claims that the formality of asking the parents "for their daughter's hand" is an old-fashioned custom that has been some away with. Is this so?

THE PARENTS

Dear Parents: The custom is very much alive. Unless the young man wants to start down the aisle on the "wrong foot," he had better ask the parents for their "daughter's hand."

Dear Abby: I can't seem to please my husband. He brags about everybody else's cooking but mine, and I try so hard to fix things the way he likes them. He never takes me out in company with him. I admit I don't dress up around the house, but I dress up when I go places. I have the hardest time getting him to introduce me to his friends. I still don't know half his family. I am only 35 and he is 60. Do you think he is ashamed of me?

LONELY

Dear Lonely: No, He is probably ashamed of himself.

Confidential To "Style Conscious": Yes, the skirts are shorter again this spring. But if the girls wear them any shorter, the boys will be looking longer!

Yes, Abby will answer your letter personally if you write to Abby, care of The Daily Record, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

1st Regiment To Share In Civil War Centennial

CIVIL WAR Centennial Commission in Washington, D.C. has given recognition to the organization of the First Regiment of Philadelphia, as an official observance to help celebrate the Civil War Centennial from 1961-65.

The First Regiment is Pennsylvania's only sanctioned representative to the National observance. Gov. David Lawrence and Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth have issued proclamations declaring the week of April 16-22 as First Regiment Week.

The 103rd Engineer Battalion, which is the First Regiment's present day counterpart, has many special events planned for the week.

100th of War I

One such event will take place Thursday, April 20. The 103rd is going to hold a reunion for the unit's World War I counterpart, the 100th U.S. Infantry. It is hoped that as many men as possible who served with the 100th will be able to go to Philadelphia for the affair.

Philadelphia Group Gets Harness Track License

By HERB LINNEN

HARRISBURG (AP)—Approval of a pari-mutuel track license for a Philadelphia group Wednesday sparked an open split among Pennsylvania's three harness racing commissioners.

Within 17 minutes, a license was granted to the Liberty Bell Park organization headed by Philadelphia James P. Clark. He is part owner of that city's professional football team and is finance chairman of the Philadelphia City Democratic Committee.

Democratic commissioners Martin Cusick of Sharon and Edward Kane of Philadelphia voted to give Clark a license. Commission Chairman Lawrence B. Sheppard, a Hanover Republican and a breeder of harness race horses, cast a dissenting vote.

Hold Further Licenses
Cusick and Kane also teamed up to outvote Sheppard and defer action until an unspecified time on granting any additional licenses.

The license was approved for Liberty on the condition that it construct a mile-long track and provide 1,200 stalls at its proposed $11 million plant straddling the Philadelphia-Bucks County line.

The approval sparked a charge by Sheppard that the Clark organization was trying to gain what he called "an absolute monopoly of all the best racing in Pennsylvania."

Commenting on the license situation, the chairman added: "I think of it as the last act of a play and should be known as the tragedy of harness racing in Pennsylvania."

Sheppard said he had no immediate plans to resign from the non-salaried post.

Exchange Words

After the stormy meeting broke up, he got into an exchange with Cusick over the statement that Clark's group was trying to monopolize harness racing.

"Speaking of monopolies," Cusick shot back, "you are the principal supplier to the horse owners."

He said Sheppard's "big concern is trying to get 45 per cent of the betting pool as purses for the owners."

Sheppard replied that "unless they do pay 45 per cent they will not get the top horses in Pennsylvania and won't be able to compete with the Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceway tracks."

Sheppard predicted that another group—the Bucks County Racing Association, headed by Pittsburgher Daniel C. Parish, a friend of Gov. Lawrence—would soon seek a lease agreement with Clark's organization.

Wants Two Tracks

Sheppard wants at least two tracks in the Philadelphia area, each with a 50-day meeting. He is against two licenses operating from one plant.

The license approval may result in court action. Several lawyers representing other groups seeking licenses conceded this was a possibility.

The meeting sparked major repercussions in the legislature. In the Senate a move was started to repeal the 1959 harness racing law.

Boston Clips Hawks

BOSTON (AP)—The sizzling Boston Celtics shook off early ineptness for a 116-108 victory over St. Louis Wednesday night and a 2-0 game advantage in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship playoffs.

The wizardry of Bob Cousy, brilliant performances by Frank Ramsey and Sam Jones, plus a tough defense decided this battle before 13,909 fans.

Once again Cliff Hagan and Bob Pettit carried the Hawks' colors down to the wire, with Hagan contributing 40 points and Pettit 30 more.

Cousy High Man

The 31-year-old Cousy kept the Celtics alive during their troubled early moments and wound up Boston's high scorer with 26 points.

Cousy's swift, deceptive maneuvers sent his teammates on a 10-point spree at the start of the third quarter and Boston was in front to stay.

Ramsey contributed 24 points, Tommy Heinsohn 23 and Jones 22 in the Boston effort.

For the first time in its four playoff series with the Hawks, Boston has won both of the first two games at home. Now they head west for nationally televised games Saturday and Sunday.

Talk On Injuries Set This Month

HARRISBURG (AP)—A second statewide conference on athletic injuries is planned by the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

An announcement Friday said the new date would be April 8, with an all-day session at Geisinger Medical Center in Danville. It added that about 100 physicians, coaches, trainers, and school officials are expected to attend for the discussions on how to prevent sports injuries and what to do when they occur.

Laurel Seeks Challenge Race

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Laurel Race Course has offered to stage the proposed $100,000 winner-take-all match race between Tudor Way and April Skies.

Joseph T. Cascarella, executive vice president of Laurel, suggested the race be held within the next two weeks so both horses could be in the peak of condition.

The match race challenge—with a $100,000 side bet—was issued by Stephan Ballarini, racing manager of Tudor Way for owner-trainer Juan J. D'Agostino. Jerome Derezio, owner of April Skies, accepted the challenge pending the condition of his horse after Saturday's $25,000 Westchester at Aqueduct.

Trio Of Arrested Giants Won't Stand Trial, Says Club Official

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Three members of the San Francisco Giants baseball team were jailed briefly Wednesday on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct, but they don't intend to stand trial.

The charges stemmed from a dispute with two youths — or three, depending on which version you accept — outside the Giants' headquarters at the downtown Hotel Adams.

Arrested shortly before their midnight curfew were infielder Harvey Kuenn, 31, third baseman Jim Davenport, 27, and catcher Bob Schmidt, 27.

Hearing Set
They were held three hours, then released on $30 bond each. A preliminary hearing was set for April 13 — 11 days after the Giants are due to leave their Phoenix spring training camp.

"We're going into a pennant race now," club secretary Edward T. Brunick told police, "and we won't be back. The ball will be forfeited."

Policeman Gary Dull said he found the three ballplayers on the sidewalk in front of the hotel, arguing with Lester Gray, 20, of Phoenix.

Yelled Insults
The players, the officer said, were "loud, causing a disturbance, and smelled strongly of alcohol." He said he saw no blows struck.

Gray who was not held, said the three Giants pulled up beside his car and yelled insults as he drove from suburban Scottsdale toward downtown Phoenix. Outside the hotel, the players forced another car to the curb and one player started to drag one of two youthful occupants out of it, Gray contended.

Manager Alvin Dark said the players told him Gray and two other youths followed them from Scottsdale to Phoenix, then hurled taunts at them outside the hotel.

Softball Meeting

MONROE County Softball League meets tonight at 8 at Lackawanna Hotel, East Stroudsburg.

Redlegs Build Large Wall

CINCINNATI (AP)—There figures to be a lot of home runs hit this year at the Cincinnati Reds' Crosley Field on which the ball never will leave the park.

The reason: A 40-foot high screen has been erected atop the left field wall and club officials said any batted ball hitting the screen—not the wall—will be ruled a home run. Balls hit against the wall, of course, will be good for whatever distance the batter can go.

Doubleheader Tonight

Lawson, Palmer A. C. Post First Round YMCA Victories

LAWSON Automotive and Palmer A. C. scored impressive first round victories in the opening round of the Monroe County YMCA Senior Basketball Tournament last night.

Lawson eliminated Rudy's Grill 102-84 and Palmer beat East Stroudsburg Methodist 124-90.

In tonight's action, Nazareth's Town House meets Weaver's at the opener at 7 and Hot Dog Johnnies takes on Fetherman's Paint Store at 8:30.

Russ Hopewell, honorable mention basketball Little All-American and Scott Weaver, both of East Stroudsburg State College, head the Weavers, while 6-6 Ev Hothouse, former high All-American leads Hot Dog Johnnies.

Control Boards
Lawson, with Doug Shook doing most of the heavy work, completely controlled the backboards.

Rudy's managed only nine points in the first period and trailed 40-33 at the half.

Lawson had four men well into double figures, with Ray Heenan's 30 points the top mark. Shook followed with 24, Gino Grobelny had 23 and Lem Ison added 16. Joe Habakus and Tony Salerno, both members of the East Stroudsburg State College basketball team, topped Rudy's scoring. Habakus had 28 points and Salerno 21. Joe Bean tacked on 19 points.

Only Five Men
Rudy's played the game with only five men in uniform and had to revise its defense in the third quarter, when Salerno picked up his fourth foul. But he managed to avoid the final personal foul.

Sal Rizzo, with 38 points, led a well balanced Palmer attack, that simply overpowered East Stroudsburg Methodist.

Palmer used only six players and they all responded with top scoring performances. Jim Mazzie trailed Rizzo with 22 points and Tom Harrington added 21.

Bill Moyer was the high man for the Methodists, scoring 25 points. Dick Gray had 19 and Carl Adelmann, 12.

Lawson meets Palmer in Saturday night's 8:30 semi-final. The finals will be held Monday.

Arizin Quits To Join IBM

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Paul Arizin, former All-American and for nine years a star of the Philadelphia Warriors in the National Basketball Association, announced Wednesday he is quitting the game for a full-time business opportunity.

"I have accepted a full-time job with International Business Machines," Arizin said. "It will be a sales position and I will begin schooling for the job in June."

Arizin said he informed owner Eddie Gottlieb of the Warriors two weeks ago of his decision to retire from basketball.

MacPhail has been closing out his thoroughbred operations for more than a year.

MacPhail, 71, retired from baseball in 1947 when he gave up the presidency of the New York Yankees.

Palmer, Snead To Defend Cup

NEW YORK (AP)—Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa. and Sam Snead will defend the Canada Cup for the United States this year.

Frank Pace Jr., president of the International Golf Association, said Saturday that Palmer and Snead had accepted invitations to play in the international competition June 1-4 at Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico.

AP Picks Braves For Natl. Flag

This is the final article in a two-part series rating the standings of the American and National League teams. In the previous article, Frank Eck picked the Yankees to win the American pennant.

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
MILWAUKEE—"We will win it this time," says Charlie Dressen whose teams always show better his second year as pilot. "Another relief pitcher (to go with Don McMahon) and we'll be all set. Our new double play combination (Roy McMillan at short, Frank Bolling at second) is just what we needed."

Dressen may have an outfield problem since trading off center fielder Bill Bruton but he's hoping Hank Aaron, Wes Covington and Al Spangler, and maybe Mack (The Knife) Jones fill the bill. Aaron, Ed Mathews and Joe Adcock are the big guns. They drove in a total of 341 runs last year. Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette and Bob Buhl must carry a big pitching load and each may see occasional relief duty again.

LOS ANGELES—"My big job is to pick the right talent," says Walt Alston. "We have so much of it." Alston is high on Willie Davis, a speed demon with a questionable arm. "We have the pitching and I think we'll have better hitting than a year ago," says the skipper.

If big Frank Howard plays first base and Tom Davis or Charlie Smith fill the bill at third base the Dodgers can take all the marbles. Willie Davis, a 346 outfielder at Spokane, could be the league's top rookie.

PITTSBURGH—"I doubt that we played over our heads last year and this is a determined club," says Danny Murtaugh. Murtaugh sees pitching help in the trade which puts Bobby Shantz in the bullpen with Roy Face and Clem Labine. He has good starters in Vern Law, Bob Friend, Wilmer Mizell and Harvey Haddix. His infield of Don Hoak, Dick Groat, Bill Mazeroski and Rocky Nelson is one of the best.

ST. LOUIS—"I'm not saying we can't do it," Solly Hemus replied when told his predictions for his strong pitching staff added up to 95 victories. Hurlers are Ernie Broglio, Larry Jackson, Bob Miller, Ray Sadecki, Curt Simmons, ace reliever Lindy McDaniel and Al Ciochitto, a 16-game Toronto winner.

Second baseman Julian Javier, a speedball, made a big difference in the Red Birds whose one big bat belongs to third sacker Ken Boyer. Much depends on Stan Musial who, when he plays, will bat behind Boyer. The Cards lack outfield power and a steady hitting gardener.

SAN FRANCISCO—"Willie Mays is my center fielder and my six starting pitchers are Mike McCormick, Juan Marichal, Stu Miller, Sam Jones, Billy O'Dell and Jack Sanford," says freshman pilot Alvin Dark. This was the ex-infielder's way of saying all other positions are up for grabs.

If the Giants finish higher than fifth it will be a big feather in the cap of Dark, who has never managed. Even the Giants fear Candlestick Park and unless Alvin can get that strong left field wind to subside the Giants again appear second—"vision doomed."

CINCINNATI—"Young pitchers are our hope," says Fred Hutchinson whose only regular infielder may be Eddie Kasko, the bespectacled jack of three positions.

His hurlers are Bob Purkey, Jay Hook, Joey Jay, Jim Maloney and Jim O'Toole. However, only Purkey is consistent. The Reds' outfield of Frank Robinson, Vada Pinson, Gus Bell and Wally Post is their strong point.

PHILADELPHIA—"I've learned a lot in one year," says sophomore pilot Gene Mauch. "We're aiming for 70 victories this season."

That appears a big bite especially since you never can tell when a Phillie will leave town, as two of them have done this spring. This time a year ago even the manager, Eddie Sawyer, quit after one game.

Two workhorse pitchers—Robin Roberts and Art Mahaffey—are fancied to keep the Phils out of the cellar.

CHICAGO—No quotes here. No manager! The Cubs have a flock of coaches pulling strings and that could lead to quite a tangle.

Their one solid citizen is shortstop Ernie Banks who has four straight campaigns with 41 or more homers and 100-plus runs batted in. Outfielder Billy Williams (26 homers and .323 at Houston) looks like the top rookie.

Knicks Sign Bonnie Pair

NEW YORK (AP)—Tom Stith and Whitey Martin, co-captains of the St. Bonaventure basketball team the past season, signed with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association Wednesday. They were the Knicks' two top draft choices.

Moore In Weight Trouble For Valdez Title Battle

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A matter of too much weight may be Davey Moore's main problem as he prepares to defend his world featherweight title Saturday night.

Beaten but once in five years, rated one of the best pound-for-pound fighters in action, the Springfield, Ohio, scrapper meets young Danny Valdez in 15 rounds at the Olympic Auditorium.

At the moment, Moore weighs "around 132 pounds," and has only four days to pare down to the 126 limit.

"Man," said Davey, "don't you worry none. I'll make the weight."

Manager Unperturbed

Wily Willie Ketchum, the manager, and trainer Teddy Benham outwardly seemed unperturbed.

But both hope Moore does not have the same trouble he had in Tokyo last August.

Moore weighed in almost a pound over the limit and it took three trips to the sweatbox to steam him down for his title defense with Kazuo Takayama.

and the only other American boxer in the division's top 10, apparently has no weight problem. The fight will not be televised nor broadcast by radio.

Palmer, Player Still Masters' Choices

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Arnold Palmer and Gary Player are the men to beat in the 25th annual Masters tournament that starts Thursday with a field of more than 90.

The Masters this year is as wide open as the Augusta National course's fairways.

Even Palmer has his detractors. The clubhouse oddsmakers agree he has the power, physique, poise and perseverance. But has he a putter?

There is also the fact that no one ever has been able to win the Masters two years in a row, not even Palmer. He triumphed in 1958 and again in 1960.

No Hitter

The knock against Player is that the South African weighs only 150 pounds and isn't a big enough hitter to handle the massive, 6,081 yard par 36-36-72 layout.

It's a layout that is made to order for the big hitters. Player isn't the kind of golfer who can hit drives a mile. He'll have to count on finesse, skill and knowledge of the course to make up for the lack of distance.

Palmer has the necessary power and he has an unmatched record of winning the Masters, the U.S. Open and six other tournaments last year. He has three victories to show for this season.

But Palmer says his game has slumped in the few days since he reached Augusta.

"I had a 33 on one nine," he said, "but generally I've been just around par. I haven't been holing any good putts."

280 Needed

Par isn't good enough to win in this elite tournament, for which only players who have established outstanding records over the years are eligible. Under present conditions, it appears that someone will have to come up with a count of about 280 to take the top prize.

The weather changed Wednesday from the chilly, gusty winds to warm, calm sunshine and the forecast was that it would remain pleasant throughout the tournament. That's the way it was when Ben Hogan set his record of 274 in 1953.

Julian Javier, a St. Louis rookie who played 119 games last season, paced National League in sacrifice bunts with 15.

NBC Receives Video Rights

NEW YORK (AP)—Exclusive television and radio rights to the 1961 and 1962 National Football League championship games were sold Wednesday to the National Broadcasting Company for $1,230,000, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said.

The fee is the highest ever paid for the rights to a football game, amateur or professional, Rozelle said.
